September 2026

JS investments
Better Investments for a Better Future!

September sharpened the contrast between Pakistan's improving sovereign narrative and an increasingly unsettled external backdrop. The Middle East conflict entered a more consequential phase as US–Iran tensions oscillated between military exchanges, economic pressure and renewed diplomacy, while escalating hostilities in Yemen increasingly exposed Saudi energy infrastructure and the strategically vital Red Sea corridor. Russia–Ukraine also intensified, adding another layer of geopolitical risk. Yet Pakistan's external credibility continued to strengthen. A USD 3 billion return to international capital markets, alongside Moody's assessment that the economy had absorbed the Hormuz shock materially better than it had during the 2022 oil crisis, reflected the dividends of two years of stabilization. Pakistan's diplomatic relevance also grew, helping facilitate Qatari LNG transit. At home, renewed militancy along the western border underscored a separate security challenge. With the IMF's fourth review underway and approximately USD 1.2 billion potentially at stake, macroeconomic repair remains encouraging, but its durability is increasingly being tested by unresolved external energy and security shocks.

Headline inflation moderated to 10.3% YoY in September, although the improvement was more optical than fundamental, reflecting favorable base effects rather than a meaningful easing in underlying price pressures. Sequential inflation remained firm at 1.3%, driven largely by electricity adjustments and higher fuel prices, while core inflation remained elevated at 8.5%. The broader picture therefore remains one of sticky underlying inflation compounded by renewed energy pressures, with 1QFY27 inflation averaging 10.2%. Looking ahead, the disinflation path is likely to remain uneven, with global oil prices, administered energy adjustments and their second-round effects increasingly shaping the inflation trajectory and policy reaction function, even as monetary policy remains an inherently limited remedy for externally driven supply shocks.

Pakistan's fixed-income market underwent a pronounced repricing in September, led by the belly and long end of the curve. While shorter-tenor yields moved comparatively modestly, 3- and 5-year yields rose by 82 bps to 12.73% and 12.72%, respectively, as sticky inflation, elevated energy prices, and rising global yields drove a sharp rebuilding of term premia. The MPC held the policy rate at 11.5%, with seven of ten members supporting the decision, while rising inflation expectations and the SBP's projection that inflation would reach the upper end of its target only by June 2027 reinforced expectations of a more prolonged restrictive policy setting. Late-month auction cut-offs subsequently reset sharply higher, suggesting the market is no longer merely pricing out easing, but beginning to assign some probability to renewed tightening. Against this backdrop, the curve increasingly reflects a preference for shorter tenors, with investors demanding greater compensation to assume duration risk.

The KSE-100 entered a consolidation phase in September, declining 3.96% to 169,969 after an extended period of strong gains. While Commercial Banks accounted for nearly 2,800 points of the index decline, weakness broadened across the market, with Cement, Power Generation, Exploration & Production and Technology also weighing on performance. Liquidity thinned as risk appetite moderated, with average daily turnover declining 34% MoM in value terms. Meanwhile, the relative resilience of higher-dividend stocks pointed to a more defensive tilt in investor preferences. Overall, September appears less indicative of deterioration in the underlying earnings cycle and more a reset in valuations and positioning following the market's earlier advance, with stock selection likely to assume greater importance as market leadership becomes increasingly concentrated.

Foreign investors remained net sellers in September, with USD 17.7 million of outflows reinforcing the tactical nature of July's inflows. Domestic investors again absorbed the selling, led by individuals with net purchases of USD 37.3 million, while Mutual Funds were the largest sellers at USD 42.6 million. With domestic institutional selling exceeding overseas selling, the correction reflected a broader reassessment of risk, while continued buying by individuals on weakness reinforced the depth of local liquidity.

Global markets reset sharply as persistent inflation, elevated energy prices and renewed monetary tightening pushed yields higher. The U.S. Fed raised rates by 25 bps to 3.75–4.00%, its first hike since 2023, while the U.S. 10-year Treasury yield moved above 5%. Risk assets, however, did not weaken uniformly: broader equities came under pressure while technology retained relative strength, reflecting continued appetite for structural growth themes. Energy remained a key channel of inflationary transmission, complicating the policy outlook, while higher yields weighed on gold. For Pakistan, September's Eurobond issuance proved well timed, preceding a rise in global yields that has raised external funding costs and the hurdle rate for future sovereign issuance.

Looking ahead, October represents a potentially pivotal juncture, with electoral calendars converging with unresolved geopolitical fault lines and leaving the path between diplomacy and further escalation unusually fluid. Rather than position portfolios around a single outcome, we remain focused on resilience across scenarios—maintaining disciplined duration and liquidity, diversified risk exposures and selective exposure to businesses with the earnings strength to navigate a more volatile cycle.

JSMFI Description

JSMFI combines the appeal and intuition of a passive approach. It takes a quantitative approach that systematically analyzes, selects, weights and rebalances portfolio holdings based on a certain characteristic — called factor i.e. Momentum for this index. The theory behind Momentum is that stocks whose share prices have consistently risen for a given period of time are likely to keep rising. JSMFI has developed an index methodology that captures momentum in an intuitive and transparent way, making it accessible to all investors.
